American Congress.

Program of the Coming International Conference.

INSTRUCTIONS TO DELEGATES.

They Will Meet in the Diplomatic Room at the Department of State in Washington, at Noon on Next Wednesday for Organization — Other Washington Despatches.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Letters have been mailed from the department of state, informing the delegates to the International American congress that they would be expected to meet for organization in the diplomatic room at the department of state, at noon on Wednesday. Oct. 2, at this time they will be received by Mr Blaine, who will deliver an address of welcome. They will then organize by the election of a president, vice president and secretary, and then proceed to the White House, where they will be formally presented to the president. It is understood that Mr. Blaine intends to give them a dinner the same evening.

The delegates were also officially informed that the residence, 1801 I street, had been secured for the use of the congress, and that subsequent meetings would be held there. They were also invited to make their headquarters at that house where they will find writing, reading and consultation rooms ready for their use.

The state department has made public the itinerary of the tour of the delegates to the International American congress. The delegates will leave Washington on Thursday morning of next week, going to West Point, where they will witness the unveiling of portraits of Gens. Grant, Sherman and Sheridan by Gen. Horace Porter, on behalf of George W. Childs. From West Point they will go to New York on the United States steamship Yorktown, and then by the Fall River line to Boston.

Among the features of the program mapped out for the excursionists are visits to the large manufacturing establishments of New England and the west, receptions, banquets, and other entertainments by state and municipal authorities and an inspection of Harvard, Yale, the Michigan university, the University of Notre Dame and other collegiate institutes. Governors Bulkley, of Connecticut; Hill, of New York, and Francis, of Missouri; and the mayors of Boston, St Louis, Buffalo, Grand Rapids, Springfield, Mass., and other cities, have already made preparations for public receptions. The party will go as far west as Omaha. No more than two day will be spent in any one city, except where Sunday intervenes. The delegates will return to Washington Nov. 12.

Only a Question of Law.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26. Customs officers at the treasury department are inclined to differ with Collector Erhardt regarding the operations of the alien contract law with respect to the international exposition. One of them, speaking of the matter, said that the importation of workmen by foreign exhibitors at the exposition would hardly be called a violation of the spirit of the law, the object of which was to keep out undesirable foreign competitors. These workmen could hardly be called competitors of American workmen, and he thought the matter could be arranged without action on the part of congress

A Big Land Deal.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26. - The department of state has been officially informed that the executive power of the Argentine Republic has laid before the congress a draft of a law dividing 750,000,000 acres of government land in the territory of Chubut into small holdings from 500 to 1,000 acres each, and offering the same for sale at from $1 to $3 National money per hectare, about two and one-half acres. It it proposed to divide the whole area into ten sections one allotted to Argentine settlers and the others respectively to the different nationalities of Europe supplying immigration to the Argentine Republic.

Fished Out of the Waters.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Almon Haltzclaw, the man whose body was found in the Ohio river, was a brother of C. Taylor Haltzclaw and W. B. Haltzclaw, and a nephew of T. J. Haltzclaw, the prominent builders of this city. He was 22 years of age and was born at Warrenton, Va. W. B. Haltzclaw said that he knew of no reason why his brother should take his own life unless it was despondency from lack of employment.

Another [illegible].

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 26.—In addition to the loss of about $1,000,000 by fraudulent coupons it is now feared that the state has lost large sums by another fraud. The Times-Democrat Baton Rouge special says that a levee warrant drawn three or four years ago for over $500 was recently presented for payment. Suspicion was aroused, as the levee fund has never been short, and there was no room for holding a warrant uncashed for so long. On inquiry it was found that the warrant had been presented and paid about the time of its date. How it again became floated is not known, and it is supposed that many such warrants have been paid more than once.

A Bright Hotel Clerk.

BOSTON, Sept. 26.—Vice President Morton has written to Mayor Hart stating that he would have been glad to have visited Boston with the president in August, but the clerk of a Washington hotel detained the invitation until a few days ago.

REUNION OF VETERANS.

A Great Turnout at a Reception Tendered Gen. W. T. Sherman.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 26.—With breakfast, personal visitings at the Burnet, which kept open house all day, excursions to the city, the morning of the first day of the twenty-second reunion of the Army of the Tennessee was spent by those not engaged in the business meeting. In the afternoon came the pleasant affair at the chamber of commerce, and the admirable entertainment by Gen. and Mrs. Andrew Hickenlooper in honor of Gen. and Miss Sherman, all of which furnish pleasant reading for the members of the society, and their friends, who include the whole community and the whole country.

The first day reunion was in fact a success in attendance, in weather and in enthusiasm. Especially has "Old Tecumseh," as the western people best love to call Gen. W. T. Sherman, been recipient of an ovation. It almost seemed as if men felt that one of the grandest figures of the century's military history was possibly making his last public appearance in Cincinnati, and they not only vied with each other in doing honor to the hero of the "March to the Sea," but brought their children and their children's children to look upon his bronzed face and hair grown gray in the nation's service.

At the chamber of commerce this feeling was prominent, and at the reception at Gen. Hickenlooper's residence ladies by the hundreds crowded to greet the veterans, and in many to be kissed by him. It was at Music Hall last evening, however, that the general interest grew into excitement. The already historic hall has never before been so elaborately decorated. Mingled with the countless stands of colors and great wealth of floral ornaments were emblazoned the names of all the generals of the Army of the Tennessee, those living being grouped on one side of the hall, and those of the illustrious dead surrounding a striking "in memoriam" design. At either side of the back of the stage hung banners with the names of the battles of the army.

One side of the stage was occupied by earthworks bristling with cannon, typifying "war," while on the other side was a pretty realistic representation of peace, tinkling on the shepherd's bell and singing with the reapers.

The main decoration, fully sixty feet high by forty wide, covering the great organ, was in flowers and gold, with the names, "Grant, Sherman, McPherson, Howard, Logan," and the "Forty Rounds" of the Thirteenth army corps for the eloquent legends. No pains or expense had been spared in ornamenting the splendid auditorium, and there were flags, banners and bannerets, festoons and mottoes, flowers and streamers of flowers, from the stage to the foyer, where bright cannon and stacked arms gave all comers a hint that it was a soldiers' gathering, and from crowded floor to gleaming dome.

The escort for the Society of the Army of the Tennessee began to assemble at the Burnet house at 7 o'clock, and at half-past 7 the entire procession began to move toward Music Hall. There were illuminations all along the line of march, and the procession passed along a narrow isle, walled in with people solid to the houses. There were fully 2,500 men in line, which was far beyond what was expected. The sight of the "Old Commander," marching on foot with the boys, caused cheering and enthusiasm everywhere.

When the members of the society and their escorts reached the hall, having marched through crowded streets with military and police escort, thousands of seats were already filled, and the cheering on the entrance of Gen Sherman was enthusiastic.

All the other notables were also warmly greeted as they entered and occupied the stage, on which were finally seated: Gen. W. T. Sherman, Governor Foraker, Mayor Mosby, Gen. Howard, Gen. How, and many others.

Speeches were then delivered by Gen. Hickenlooper, Mayor Mosby and Governor Foraker. Then came the address of the evening by Gen. Sherman, in whose honor the reception was held. His address was then followed by other less notables.

That Oyster Trouble.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 26.- A delegation of citizens from the Potomac oyster district waited upon the board of public works yesterday and presented the case of the alleged violation by Virginians of the compact between Maryland and Virginia for the prohibition of oyster dredging in the Potomac until Nov. 1. They demanded that the state of Maryland see to it that Virginia lives up to her oyster treaty. The board of public works will enter into communication with Governor Lee, of Virginia, about the matter.

Constitutional Convention Work.

CHEYENNE, Wy. T., Sept. 26.—The corporation element won on the constitutional convention fight to levy a tonnage royalty on coal mined in the new state. The operatives are the Union Pacific, Colorado Coal and Iron company, and several lesser organizations. They market 2,000,000 tons a year from Wyoming, and pay only $11,200 taxes. Propositions making eight hours a legal working day and barring foreign police from the state was adopted.

A Wrecked Vessel Goes to Pieces.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 26.—The wrecked Gestemunde, hailing from Stetten, Germany, and which went ashore during the storm on Sept. 12, went to pieces yesterday, and the wreckage is strewn all along the beach. The captain, Ferdinand Leute, saw her go to pieces, and the wreckage company have only been able to save a small portion of her fittings; a small portion of the vessel only is left, and that has drifted further down the beach and nearer shore.

Two Trains Robbed.

One in Mississippi and the Other in Texas.

ALL THE ROBBERS ESCAPE.

Four Men Take Part in the Mississippi Affair, While Five Men Secure Ten Thousand Dollars from the Santa Fe Express—Details By of the Two Daring Deeds.

MOBILE, Ala., Sept 26.—The Mobile and Ohio Southern mail and passenger train was boarded by thieves at Buckatunna, Miss., seventeen miles north of this city, yesterday morning. As the train was leaving that station two men mounted behind the tender and crawled over into the cab of the locomotive. There they covered Engineer Jack Sherrell and Fireman Hust with their revolvers.

The robbers, who were well masked, ordered the engineer to stop the train at the bridge two miles south of Buckatunna. This order was given at the point of a revolver, and the engineer was compelled to obey it. Arriving at the bridge, the engineer and fireman were to detach the mail and express car from the balance of the train and to pull these two cars across the bridge away from the other cars. At that point two other men joined the robbers. The express messenger was then forced to dump the contents of a safe into a canvas bag. The amount thus obtained was about $2,700.

The robbers overlooked $70,000 of government money en route for Florida. The mail car was then raided, and a pouch filled with registered mail matter secured. This pouch was made up at Meridian and the value of its contents unknown. The robbers then fired several shots at the train men and disappeared in the undergrowth. The train then proceeded to Citronell, where a posse was made up and started in search of the robbers.

The Mobile and Ohio Railroad company offers $1,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of the men who robbed the train at Buckatunna bridge. The leader of the train robbers is believed to be Rube Burrows, a desperado well known in the northern part of the state. The suspected parties have been camping in the vicinity of the bridge for several days past. A posse is now in pursuit of them, and it is believed that they will be captured within a few hours.

Express on the Santa Fe Robbed.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 26 - About 10 o'clock last night, as the south-bound Santa Fe train was pulling out of Crowley, ten miles south of this city, three men boarded the train and two others jumped on the locomotive. The two on the engine placed pistols to the heads of Engineer Monohan and Fireman Croger and told them to pull out. When two miles from Crowley the engineer was ordered to stop. Then the robbers cut the engine, baggage, mail and express from the rest of the train and made Monohan pull half a mile further.

Two of the robbers then entered the express car and ordered the messenger to show them the money. Then bags of Mexican silver were pointed out. One of the men ripped open a sack and shoveled the silver out of the door, while the other one threw out the other sacks. They took two packages said to contain $5,000 each, but overlooked three or four money packages for Fort Worth.

The engineer was then made to couple and move. The train reached here at midnight, and a posse of twenty men started in pursuit.

THE SWEETWATER LYNCHERS

Branded as Murderers by a Half-Brother of One of the Victims.

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 25.- R. W. Cahill, whose half-brother, James Averill, was lynched with "Cattle Kate" in Wyoming some time ago, has written a pitiful letter from the deserted ranch cabin in the Sweetwater valley, where the double lynching took place. The woman who was hanged with Averill was not the notorious "Cattle Kate," so says Cahill, but Ella Watson, who owned and occupied a ranch a few miles north of Averill's

"If I could I would have found relief in tears. There were several head of cattle pasturing on this meadow cattle that belonged to some of the men who have, without any reason, murdered him. It was only to get his nice home which caused his death, the murderers thinking that $300,000 of money would save them. They thought they could call him a cattle thief and the outside world would think that there was another bad desperado gone, and then the public would cease to talk. But, thank God, their crime was discovered. They had to commit the crime themselves, for there is not a cowboy in Wyoming territory who knew my brother who would not venture his life to protect him."

Cahill proposes to do all in his power to bring the lynchers to justice. Several indictments have been obtained against some of the most prominent cattlemen of Wyoming, but it will be extremely difficult to secure a conviction before a jury.

Still Searching for Wooden Men.

CHICAGO, Sept 26 The examination of veniremen in the Cronin case was resumed at 1 p. m. Th. wo men held over from the previous day were excused for cause. Ten veniremen were examined. Three were excused for cause two challenged peremptorily by the defense and one by the state. Four were temporarily passed and placed in charge of a bailiff for the night.

WAR SHIP LILY WRECKED.

Seven Men Drowned and the Remainder Safely Landed.

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 26. Her majesty's steamer Emerald has just arrived here with the survivors of the wrecked war ship Lily. First Lieut Hewitt gives the following story of the disaster: "The Lily went ashore Sept. 16 at 5 o'clock in the afternoon at a place called Port Armour, Forteaw bay, on the coast of Labrador. She was bound into Forteaw bay for her mails. At the time a very thick fog prevailed and suddenly, without the least warning, the ship struck the rocks with considerable force. Breakers could then be heard about the ship. The officers did not know exactly what they had struck.

"The ship commenced to pound heavily, fill with water rapidly and three of the boats were lowered and started for the shore, but owing to the heavy surf they capsized when close in, throwing the occupants all into the water. All but two reached shore. One of the sailors then swam ashore with a line and by this means a hawser was got to land. Between the ship and the beach a ledge of sharp rocks intervened with very deep water between the rocks and the shore and over this ledge, which turned out to be a perfect death trap, a hawser was passed. Four of the crew attempted to climb ashore by means of this rope, but they were dashed to death on the rocks beneath.

"Finding it impossible to land safely by these means a cradle was arranged on the hawser. The first man to be sent from the ship in it was a West Indian named Seafey, who acted as musician on board. He met the same fate as the four others, his dead body being found in the cradle next day. Finally in response to distress signals a number of men came from Port Armour, and with their help the remainder of those on board managed to reach shore in safety about 6 o'clock next morning. Shortly after the upsetting of the boats, when it was seen how unsafe it was to land, the cutter with the ship's papers, money, etc., was sent out to sea in charge of an officer, and remained there all night, landing safely in Forteau bay the next day. When the fog lifted on Tuesday it was found that the Lily had struck a reef about a hundred yards from shore.

"On the Sunday before there had been a heavy blow, and this caused a very heavy swell to roll in, which soon pounded the bottom out of the ship. With the help of the Emerald's men the wreck was stripped of all her spars, sails and rigging, nothing being left but the lower mast. All the small arms were saved. On the Thursday following the Dominion steamer La Canadienne came along, and it was by her that the news was sent to Bonnie Bay to be cabled to the admiral at Halifax. When the Emerald left last Saturday, the Lily was lying on her starboard side, with her netting under water. Her three heavy guns were left on board, it being impossible to land them. Of the lost six were blue jackets, including one colored man and one was a marine The vessel's crew numbered 106."

MEN OF MONEY.

Meeting of the American Bankers' Association at Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 26.—The American Bankers' association met in annual convention here yesterday. Fully 1,000 delegates are present. President Charles Pearsons, of St. Louis, called the convention to order at 11 o'clock. Joseph S. Chick, on behalf of the Kansas City clearing house, extended a welcome to the delegates. Mayor Davenport welcomed them on behalf of the city, and Governor Frances on behalf of the state. President Pearsons responded for the delegates, and delivered the opening address. Mr W. P. St. John, of New York, then read an able technical paper on legal tender. He expressed himself as opposed to free coinage, and outlined a plan for retiring the legal tender notes of the government rapidly and without diminishing the sum of money in circulation. A motion to recommend to congress such action as was outlined in Mr. St. John's paper was referred to the appropriate committee.

Hon Logan H. Roots, of Little Rock, Ark., moved that as the executive council had several amendments to the constitution to propose, the chairman of the committee be heard and the amendments acted upon. The report was made by John Jay Knox, of New York, the president of the executive council. The principal changes recommended were for the provision of article dividing the executive council into three parts, so that one-third of it might be elected each year, the term of office being made three years, and that the different State Bankers' association be given one delegate at each annual meeting of the National association. The amendments prevailed. The associations were instructed to report their selection to the president before 3 o'clock, and the convention adjourned for the day.

In the afternoon the delegates were given a ride over the various cable lines of the city, which pass most of the points of general interest. In the evening a banquet was tendered to the delegates and visiting bankers at the Den of the Priests of Pallas. The banquet is believed to be the finest ever served in the west, covers being laid for 2,000.

Twelve Men Injured in a Wreck.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26.—A special to The Record from Wilmington, Del., says: A collision occurred this morning between a wild cat engine and a caboose filled with [illegible] workmen on the Philadelphia and Baltimore railway near Claymont. Twelve men were injured as follows. Joseph Hughes, John O'Neill, George Phillips, Patrick Sweeney, Daniel Mitchell, Harry McKindless, John Kine John Kane, James Cavanaugh, all laborers. James Legg, engineer; Frank P. Hawkins, fireman, and William Gibbs, trackman. Hughes is the most seriously injured, being hurt internally.

He Will Not Accept.

Major Warner Makes His Final Decision

NOT TO SUCCEED MR. TANNER.

He Telegraphs the President to That Effect—His Letter of Declination Made Public — No Announcement Made of Any Other Selection.

DEER PARK, Md., Sept. 26.—Maj. William Warner, of Missouri, has finally declined to accept the office of commissioner of pensions, which was tendered him by the president, but at the urgent solicitation of the president Maj. Warner agreed to withdraw it and reconsider his determination. Yesterday, however, after consultation with his business partners, he telegraphed that he must adhere to his original declination, and his letter is therefore made public:

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 16, 1889.

SIR—After due deliberation I am compelled to decline the appointment of commissioner of pensions. I appreciate the great compliment paid me by the tender of the commissionership, and did not business engagements, which I have no right to break, forbid it, no personal sacrifice would prevent my acceptance. I should esteem it a high honor to be commissioner of pensions under your administration and aid as best I could in carrying out your wise and liberal policy towards the old soldiers and sailors entitled to pensions under existing laws and to co-operate with you in securing the necessary additional legislation for the nation's defenders.

Feeling as I do a deep interest in the proper and liberal administration of the pension laws, it is with the sincerest regret that I make this declination, especially after the full and frank conversation I had with you and the honorable secretary of the interior on Saturday last, reassuring me as it did, that our comrades have no truer or warmer friends. Thanking you for the confidence expressed in me by your offer and again expressing my deep regret that I am compelled by what I esteem high duties to others than myself, to decline the office, I beg leave to subscribe myself sincerely your friend. WILLIAM WARNER

To the President.

It is possible President Harrison may make another selection for commissioner while at Deer Park, but if he does the announcement will probably not be made public until after his return to Washington.

TWO MILLION DOLLARS.

A Romantic Story of Wealth, Love and Matrimony.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26. Joseph Casey, of Brooklyn, and Lawyer Stephen M. Hoye will sail next week for England, to represent American claimants to a heritage of $2,000,000. Since Mrs. Ellen Blake, widow of Gen. Edwin S. Blake, died, this inheritance has been in the hands of a big London trust company. The story of this fortune has a tinge of romance. In 1819 Edwin S. Blake was the officer in charge of the garrison troops at Athlone, Ireland. Ellen Sheridan, whose beauty was celebrated throughout the county of Longford, was then living in the township of Ballagh-Forbes, near Athlone. Blake married the girl.

In 1820 the soldier took his bride to Scotland, where a baby was born. He went back to Ireland in the same year, and the child died and was buried in the Catholic church yard at Athlone. Blake had a bitter quarrel with his family, threw up his commission, drew his patrimony of $30,000, and sailed for America. After residing for years in Ohio he went to Chicago in 1847 and began to manufacture of silk. He followed up the real estate boom closely, and in 1853 started back to England with his fortune. He died in London in 1874, and his widow passed away two years after. She made a will, but had not signed it. It is still on record, however, among the archives at Somerset house, London. Its bequests were mainly charitable, the descendant had forgotten both her husband's relatives and her own Joseph Casey is related to the widow and claims estate. The English crown has set up as a bar to his claim the fact that no record can be found of the marriage of Ellen Sheridan's parents.

Cigarmakers Elect Officers.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26. - The International Cigarmakers union has elected the following officers: Adolph Strasser, of Buffalo, N. Y., first vice president; W. Perkins, of Albany, second vice president; Samuel Gompers, of New York, third vice president; William V. Tood, of Toronto, Canada, fourth vice president; William H. McKinstry, of Muskegon, Mich., fifth vice president; William New Both, of Denver, Col., sixth vice president; Emil Leoy, of Evansville, Ind., seventh vice president, James B. Dougherty, of Richmond, Va., treasurer; L. A. Bolivo, of Westfield, Mass., secretary. Resolutions looking to the patronage of protection of union labels were adopted.

Beauties of Being a Base Ballist.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 26 The directors of the St. Louis base ball club met yesterday and fined Latham $200 and King $100 for bad playing, suspending both. Chamberlain was fined $100 and Robinson reprimanded. It is thought several of the club will refuse to play in the game with the Louisvilles.

Currency sixes, 110 bid; four coupons, 127¾; four-and-a-halfs, 105¾ bid.

Louisville and Nashville, Sugar Trusts and Tennessee coal were the features of the dealings during the first hour of the morning. The tone of speculation was firm and the first prices generally from ⅛ to ⅝ per cent. higher. Sugar Trusts were weak and opened ¾ cent. lower. Tennessee coal was especially strong, and advanced 2¾ per cent. Toward 11 o'clock there was considerable weakness displayed, and prices reacted fractionally. In the hour to noon the market was extremely dull. Prices were firm at noon, however, and at this writing values are slightly above those of last night.

Victory Against a Trust Company.

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 26.—The Wisconsin supreme court Tuesday gave John E. Burton, the ex-mining king, a big victory against the Central Trust company, of New York. The company loaned Burton $30,000, and in the Walworth county court recently tried to foreclose a trust deed for that amount. Burton pleaded usury on the part of the company, and the latter demurred to answer. The demurrer was overruled, and the company appealed. The supreme court affirmed the decision of the lower court and declined to appoint a receiver for the property.

Fred. Douglass' Private Secretary.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 26.—It is reported that E. D. Bassett, of this city, late Haytian consul at New York, has started for Hayti and will act for the president as Minister Douglass' private secretary. Mr. Bassett was removed from his consulship by Legitime for his supposed sympathy with Hippolyte.

Struck by a Freight Train.

GREELEY, Col., Sept. 26.—At half-past 6 o'clock this morning as E. H. Gale, Mrs. Jesse Gale, and Miss Gleason, a niece of Mr. Gale, were starting out to the ranch of Mr. Gale, near Hardin, their carriage was struck by a freight train Miss Gleason was instantly killed Mrs. Gale fatally injured and Mr. Gale slightly hurt.

THURSDAY. - - SEPTEMBER 26.

—V. R. Victor's Vaudeville company will appear at Music Hall Friday night with its host of beautiful women and refined, standard show. It is pronounced an attraction fully up to the times and with a novelty performance will attract a large audience at Music Hall.

—Clyde Sauters, a 10-year-old boy who attends school in the new Fourth ward building, had an arm badly broken Wednesday afternoon. Young Sauters and a number of other boys were on their way home from school and became engaged in a scuffle, during which Clyde was violently thrown to the ground with the above result.

—Bob Burdett was once asked if he ever saw a bald-headed woman. His reply was: "No, I never did. Why should I? Nor did I ever see a woman waltz around town in her shirt-sleeves, with a cigar between her teeth, stepping into every saloon she came to. I never saw a woman go fishing with a bottle in each pocket, sit on the ground all day, and go home at night drunk. Never have I seen a woman yank off her coat, spit on her hands, and say she can lick any woman in town. No, God bless her, she isn't built that way."

The Rosetta Stone.

Foremost in the rare and instructive exhibit of the Chicago Academy of Sciences, at the Inter-State Industrial exposition, is an authenticated fac-simile of this famous and invaluable key to the recorded history of nations, preceeding by centuries the fulfillment of the promise of the star of Bethlehem.

The original stone, now the treasured possession os the British museum, was discovered near Rosetta, in lower Egypt, in the month of August, 1799. The inscription in three languages, first Hyeroglyphics, second Demotic and third Greek, records a decree issued at the coronation of Ptolemy Epiphands, at Memphis, 193 before Christ.

In contemplating this relic of antiquity, the student of archeology may happily contrast the advantages of existence today and, if he may be appreciative of its pleasures and opportunities, will not neglect the privilege extended by the Chicago and Atlantic Railway, of traveling on Tuesday, Oct. 1st, by special train, at rate of less than one-half cent per mile, to the mighty metropolis, which has made possible the Annual Inter-State Exhibits, and today pledges 10,000,000 of her dollars for the creation of a World's Exposition, which shall, in magnitude and magnificence, challenge the admiration of the universe.

An Old Resident Dead.

Mrs. Maria Kennedy, and old resident of Scott township but whose home has been in Galion of late years, died at the home of her son, Thaddeus Kennedy, Tuesday evening at 9 o'clock, aged about 79 years. Until recently Mrs. Kennedy has been hale and vigorous for one so old, and has been a bright and much loved companion for her estimable daughters and son.

Mrs. Kennedy came to Scott township from Richland county with her husband in 1846, and seven years later was left a widow. Further particulars of her death are not at hand, except that the funeral occurred at Latimberville today at 10 o'clock, notice of which, we regret to say, failed to arrive in time for yesterday's issue.

Mrs. Kennedy was a bright and most estimable old lady, and her death will be a sad affliction to her loving children, even though she had well lived beyond the allotted three score years and ten.

Stole an Overcoat.

A thief entered the residence of J. D. Gregory on Wednesday morning and secured an overcoat valued at $45. The theft was discovered shortly afterwards, but no clew was then known as to who the guilty party was. However, a few hours later, a man was discovered secreting the coat in a pile of lumber, by a couple of men employed in the Prendergast yards, and the fact was reported to the police. A watch was put out for the cuprit and he was captured while waiting about the place where he had hid the coat until it was dark enough to secure it and make his departure without being observed.

The thief gave his name as James Manning, and is a tramp. He was taken before Mayor Gailey on a charge of burglary, and, after a hearing, he was bound over to appear before the grand jury. In default of a $300 bond he was placed in jail.

Wells-Roberts Nuptials.

Mr. Frank Wells, a worthy young business man of Delaware, and Miss Meta Roberts, the estimable daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Roberts, were married at the home of the bride's parents on the hill, Wednesday night. Rev. R. Wallace performed the ceremony in the presence of the family, and the bride and groom departed on the 9 o'clock train for their new home in Delaware.

The many friends of the bride and those who have learned Mr. Wells' worth extend to them many good wishes for their future welfare.

The Ladies of Marion

Should remember that Mrs. M. A. Miller has come to stay, and has fitted up the best and most scientific vapor and electric bath system ever introduced here—the McIntosh vapor (or hot air) electro theraputic—with either the Galvanic or Faradic current. They are pleasant to take; no shock. Call and see her and examine for yourselves. Parlors north Main street, over D. B. Krause's store. thursat

To Dispel Colds,

Headaches and Fevers, to cleanse the system effectually, yet gently, when costive or bilious, or when the blood is impure or sluggish, to permanently cure habitual constipation, to awaken the kidneys and liver to a healthy activity, without irritating or weakening them, use Syrup of Figs.

AT THE FAIR GROUNDS.

A Busy Scene Amid the Various Improvements Under Way—Will Be Ready for the Exhibit.

A visitor at the fair grounds views a busy scene, and he naturally concludes that all things will not be in readiness for the exhibit next week. We are assured otherwise, however. The good weather was the only condition that was necessary to hurry the work along and the directors have been favored in that line.

The mammoth new art hall is fast nearing completion and will prove an excellent addition to the grounds. It will afford space for a display four times as large as heretofore.

The old, rotten timbers in the grand stand have been replaced by strong new ones, and the witness of the races will find the stand removed twenty feet from the track, thus giving a better view of the full race course.

Not a stall or stable is located along the new picket fence on the west side. Horse and cattle barns have been builded new on the north side, horse barns that are modern and so located as to make an improved exhibit. The cattle barns are located on the northwest corner and are modern and roomy.

Carriage hall and vegetable hall have been removed and a general change in arrangements made. The biggest task yet uncomplete is the work of cleaning up the debris, and Messrs. Reber and Walters, who are superintending the work, have a large force very busy at that job. They are assured of having everything in readiness for the coming great fair next week.

To the Ladies of Marion County

And all who are interested in the fine arts, paintings, drawings, needle work, etc., of the county:

One year ago I selected five competent ladies who revised the premium list for Fine Art Hall, making very liberal premiums, cutting out and adding to as they thought proper. The society adopted the same without a change and now we are constructing a mammoth and elegant Art Hall, 100x64 feet in size, having a raised platform around the inside 8 feet wide with a railing thereon to protect the articles on exhibition from the hands of the visitors, so that all articles in said hall will be properly protected and locked up at night. We are striving to procure competent persons from other counties to act as judges. We are promised a grand display of flowers by Messrs. Wilson and Blake and ladies. We have the assurance of a fine display of musical instruments, sewing machines, cases of goods of different kinds from Marion dealers, and as the walls will be so large and clean, we ask that the ladies will do all they can to make this the grandest display that Marion county has ever seen. If you have fancy articles, fine paintings or drawings, etc., enter them, and if you have choice paintings and do not wish to enter for premiums, cannot you place them upon our spacious walls for four days where we will take good care of them and thus help to make the old saying doubly true, that Marion Fair is second to none in the state?

D. H. CLIFTON,
Supt. of Fine Arts.

Prospect Clippings.

[Prospect Monitor.]

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Hunter were down from Marion last Sunday.

Chas. Osler and wife, of Marion, were in Prospect on Tuesday.

Geo. D. Copeland, one of Marion's rising attorneys, was in Prospect Monday on legal business.

H. Ackerman, of Marion, was in town on Monday combining pleasure with business. He and John H. Eversole spent the afternoon in fishing, and Henry tells us he then took in the first fish of his life.

The Marion County Importing Company had ten of their fine imported horses at Sandusky City last week. It is needless to say that they took everything that they showed for. Mr. Watt Watkins, who represented the company, speaks very complimentary of the managers of the association.

A Scrantonian who has just returned from Lake Carey tells a good story at the expense of a Wilkesbarre young man. The Wilkesbarre chap took a lady out boat riding. When quite a distance from shore the boat was overturned. The man called loudly for help, and when it arrived and the lady had been lifted into another boat the Wilkesbarrean denied that it was the same lady that he had taken out with him. She lifted her hand to her head and was horrified to find that her wig had been washed away and that her gray hair was exposed.

The Unwritten Code.

Do Courcey—French society proposes, I see, to ostraciso M. Belz, who killed M. Piercoti in a duel.

De Vere—Perfectly proper.

Do Courcey—Yes; they say that M. Belz has dishonored himself.

De Vere—He has violated the unwritten code, which requires that no gentleman shall hurt another in a French duel.—Memphis Sunday Times.

Home-Made Wines.

A. Ritzhaupt is prepared to deliver his famous home-made wines to any part of Marion. These wines are of his own make, are pure and are highly recommended by physicians for medicinal use. He has Catawba, Concord, Delaware, Elwely and other brands. Give them a trial. Call at his cellar at residence if you desire to select. [11-10]

O. U. A. M.

SALEM, Mass., Sept. 26.—The forty-third annual session of the National council O. U. A. M. was held here Tuesday, National Commander W. O. Staples presiding. The membership is 29,099, and $109,143 has been paid in benefits during the year.

Ives Saved.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. The jury in the Ives trial disagreed, nine being for conviction, two for acquittal and one being unable to make up his mind. Ives was remanded to the Tombs.

The little son of Michael Fennell, a bricklayer of Troy, N.Y., lost his power of speech two weeks ago. The physicians were mystified. While making faces the other night one of his playmates seized his tongue and gave it a sudden jerk, and the boy is now talking to make up for lost time.

Mr. J. L. Hamilton, M. R. C. S., of Folkestone, England, says, in reference to some statements about poisonous mackerel, that fishermen have a saying that white mackerel is the best, then green, but that the red variety is the poisonous. In Guadaloupe there is a red boned mackerel used as a rat poison.

A fox hunting club was recently organized in Milwaukee, and at their first meet the officers of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals seized the fox, a dishonest stableman stole the hounds and an irate farmer had the members of the club arrested for trespassing on his property. The club is now disbanded.

Lewis Purdy, postmaster at Shrub Oak, Westchester county, N. Y., was appointed by President William Henry Harrison in March, 1841, and has served continuously from that time. Though now in his 84th year, he is vigorous, his memory and vision are clear, and he still receives and distributes the mail twice a day, as he has for long years.

William Johnson, a Westchester, N. Y., painter of considerable corpulency, has been engaged in renovating the Willistown school house, and recently he sat down at one of the desks to eat his noonday meal. When he finished he found himself so tightly wedged that he could not get up, and he would have been held a prisoner but that he had his screw driver within reach, and with the aid of this he took the chair and desk apart.

A signal service officer thus describes the view as seen through a telescope on Pike's Peak, Colo.: "I can see the houses of Colorado Springs, twenty miles away, the men sitting in their shirt sleeves, sipping iced drinks to keep cool, the ladies walking about in white summer robes. I lower the glass. The summer scene is gone. Green trees, animal life, men and women fade away like creatures of a dream, and I am the only living thing in a world of eternal snow and ice and silence."

Touched Him Right.

A citizen who owns and runs several fancy farms was sitting in his office yesterday when a trampish looking fellow, with his right thumb wound up in a rag, climbed the stairs and asked for a quarter.

"Why should I give you a quarter?" demanded the agriculturist.

"Because I can't work."

"When did you work last?"

"All last week."

"What were you doing?"

"Husking corn. That's what made my thumb sore."

"Oh, that's it! Husking corn, eh? Well, here's your quarter."

The man had been gone half an hour before a sudden thought came to the farmer. Then he leaped up, with the exclamation:

"By gosh! but I believe he lied! Of course he did! We haven't even cut our corn yet!"—Detroit Free Press.

Two Stories of Choate.

Now and then I run across a man who doesn't pretend to know everything, even in his own profession. Joseph Choate, the president of the Bar association, is one of this sort, although some people who have writhed under his cross-examination may not think so. At a meeting of the Bar association a while ago, a lawyer who is younger than many of his fellow members made an incorrect statement of some law point. His attention was called to it by an elder brother, who derisively told him that such dense ignorance as he had displayed was unpardonable. The young fellow was completely crushed and could not reply to the attack. But the great inquisitor replied for him. Addressing himself to the elder lawyer, he asked him to repeat his statement.

"I say, Mr. President," responded that gentleman, "that a man who displays such ignorance should not be allowed to practice law. Don't you agree with me?"

"Well," said Mr. Choate, in his dry, incisive way, "I really can't say that I do. I am just as ignorant as our young friend is on that point."

Choate was talking one day to a young lawyer just beginning practice, and was giving him some advice—not at regular consultation price, however. "The truth of the matter is," said the cross-questioner, "that success in New York is greatly an affair of chance. My prospects when I came here, years ago, didn't amount to much. Why, I only had one letter of recommendation to my name."

"And who was that from?" ungrammatically asked the young limb of the law.

"It was," said Mr. Choate, speaking in measured tones, "it was from Rufus Choate to William Maxwell Evarts."—New York Star.

He Drank.

In a Monroe avenue saloon yesterday a citizen who was out on a tear demanded that everybody in the place come up and drink with him. There were seven men in there, and six came promptly to the bar in response to the call. The seventh was an old bum who was half asleep, and the man with the red paint slapped him on the back and yelled.

"Do you intend to insult me?"

"Naw!"

"Then come up and drink with me!"

"Don't want any."

"But you've got to drink or fight. Which is it?"

"I—I guess I'll drink, but I've got a headache and don't want it."

"No matter about that—get up there!"

There were six glasses of beer on the counter waiting to cause untold misery, and as the old bum got up he reached for the first and gulped it down, and then slid along down the bar and emptied every glass in rotation without hardly stopping to breathe. When he had finished the last he turned to the citizen and said:

"I don't feel well, but if you insist on it I'll take about four fingers of whisky!"—Detroit Free Press.

"It depends altogether on his choice of cigars," replied Kiljordan, gasping for breath. "May the Lord in his infinite mercy soften your hard heart, Grindstone!"—Chicago Tribune.

OUR NEW YORK LETTER.

LOUIS N. MEGARGEE WRITES OF THE BIG GAMBLING HOUSES.

They Are Run for Profit and Not to Give the Players an Even Chance—A System Said to Be Sure, but Which Will Not Be Allowed.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Is the trail of the fox through the lair of the tiger? That inquiry is not anomalous, nor is it an Hibernicism. The tiger whose claws are stretched forth on the green sward on which Dame Fortune disports is expected by his victims to have ever sharpened weapons; but that particular species of carnivorous feline is known sometimes to make Sir Reynard his much beloved bedfellow, and it is of the cuteness of the latter rather than the cruelty of the former that the devoured ones complain.

In other words, are the big gambling games of this country—the corruptness of the small ones needs no questioning—honestly conducted? The inquiry presents itself by reason of the recent wail of the so called French nobleman, one Baron de Pardonnet by name, who claims to have been illegitimately deprived of several thousand dollars while playing baccarat at Phil Daly's Pennsylvania club house at Long Branch.

Subsequent investigation as to the pseudo baron's character suggests a strong probability that he is one of that numerous class of adventurers who make a living by submitting to small losses in gambling houses and then blackmailing the proprietors by a sworn complaint of a large deficit. That American weakness, however, which confers upon even a bogus nobleman a notoriety and a significance which a distinguished American might never hope to attain, gave to the alleged baron's allegation a prominence which does not naturally belong to it, and has set afoot a discussion as to the actual character of the sporting houses at the well known places where they are permitted to carry on their work.

Apart from the question as to whether a man calling himself Pardonnet is one of that numerous class of blackmailers who live upon the fears of gambling house proprietors, the query naturally suggests itself why those who hold watch and ward over the tiger's lair should feel called upon to impair the popularity of their dens by doing anything which might give rise to a suspicion that everything was not square and aboveboard. The chances of the game are in their favor even when everything is honestly conducted. The absolute facts bearing upon this phase of what is really a social question may surprise even the most inveterate patrons of the fickle goddess' sport.

Of course anything bearing upon this question has no reference to the small gambling places frequented by flashy young men, criminals and plug uglies. Such resorts as these present no enticement to any but those who are naturally depraved. It is in the swell establishment, where money is staked upon the fall of a die, or the drop of a marble, or the turn of a card, where young men are lured to ruin. The frequenters of these are the higher grades of professional gamblers, men about town, youngsters with more money than brains, and wealthy business men out on a lark. The games generally played are faro, roulette, rouge et noir and English hazard. Faro is essentially the gambler's game. Each has a system of his own by which to play it, the object of which is to reduce the chances of success to a mere toss up between dealer and player.

The professional gamester knows that none but fools play the other games of chance, for the reason, which will be hereafter explained, that the percentage of gains is bound to be in the dealers' favor. In fact, the same rule applies to faro, except in the case of an experienced adept, who plays it by a system, when, although he may lose, he stands an even chance of winning. For instance, many professional players adopt what they call the "double out" system. They place half dollar bets on the layout until they notice that any two cards—say the ace and deuce—have come out together three times, leaving one of each in the pack. Then they bet heavily, say on the ace, when they stand an exactly even chance with the dealer of winning.

This style of playing may make the banker very angry, but he can say nothing lest he should attract the attention of any inexperienced dupes about the baize and thus instruct them in a secret of the game. If everybody played faro in that way, instead of the tiger's lair having palatial surroundings and the velvety claws extending champagne gratis and charming lunches free of charge, the dealer would not be able to even give ice water to his guests.

But this style of play and the comparatively slow game of faro are not exciting enough for rapid American blood, and consequently young swells crowd about the roulette wheel and watch the throwing of the dice in English hazard or the turn of the card in rouge et noir. Roulette, however, is the favorite game because it is the most rapid and it is played with a recklessness which plainly shows that those who engage in it have no conception of the chances against their winning.

The percentage figures familiar to gamblers may open the eyes of some of these callow ones. In roulette there are thirty-six numbers and two "bars"—a technical term signifying the 0 and 00—making thirty-eight in all. If a player puts his chips upon a single number—and every other bet is relative to this proposition—and guesses aright, he is paid thirty-five dollars for one. But, mind you, there are thirty-seven chances against him to one in his favor. Consequently, if the play is continued for an indefinite period of time, and the game should run with exact evenness, out of thirty-eight plays the gamester will be successful one time, which will pay him thirty-five times his investment. He has, however, lost thirty-seven times. Assuming, therefore, that the losses and gains are even, the bank earns 6 per cent. on all the money that passes over its table. In rouge et noir the percentage against the player is estimated by professionals at 4½ per cent.

Of course the votaries of the wheel will laugh at any arithmetical application to their favorite game. They quote newspaper stories of heavy winnings to prove that no one can tell in which direction fortune will smile. Every few weeks there comes from Long Branch and Saratoga during the summer months, and from the big cities during the winter time, tales of fabulous winnings by desperate players, who are generally announced as hailing from some theretofore unheard of town in the far west. It is an uncontestable fact, easily capable of proof, that nearly all these tales are mere fiction intended to lure victims, or where men have made winnings of a few hundred dollars the sums are magnified into thousands. The fact that the great gambling houses, no matter where located, are magnificently appointed, that the finest liquors and the most expensive viands are furnished free to all comers, no matter whether they play or not, should be sufficient answer in any discussion as to who sits on the best side of the green cloth.

To be sure there are men with "systems," but "systems" don't always work. To this it must be confessed there is one exception—if dealers would permit it to remain an exception, which, needless to say, they do not. And herein lies a tale new to the newspaper readers, and up to this time known to but a few of those who dare the frowns of fortune in the temple of her greatest fickleness. Some time ago Leonard Jerome, the father of the American Jockey club, the patron saint of Jerome park, the father of Lady Randolph Churchill and the brother of the late lamented wit, "Larry" Jerome, and the best known gentleman sportsman—in the truest sense of the term—learned from an old croupier in Monte Carlo a system whereby roulette could be beaten. It is simple and it is certain. It is based upon a system of arithmetical progression, but is applicable only to simple bets on whether the black or the red shall be winners. It of course can be equally well applied to any other similar game of chance, such as the toss of a dollar. The presence of the 0 and 00 in roulette does not affect it. Although it is simplicity itself, yet it is somewhat difficult to explain.

Briefly told it consists in a man agreeing to make bets on a certain figure and then placing five of those figures in a row. When he loses he places the amount of his loss at the end of the row and in another row marked "losses," and then for his next bet adds together the first and last figures of the row. When he wins he places the amount in a row marked "winnings" and crosses off the first and last figures in the row and makes his next bet the aggregate of the two figures next to those thus crossed off. By continuing this process, in time, no matter what the losses and winnings may be, all the figures in the row will be crossed off, when the player will discover that he is inevitably a winner to the extent of five times his original bet. If his first wager is for $5 he will find that he is $25 in pocket. Any one can test this system by the tossing of a coin and the calling of heads and tails.

Some figures may make it more plain. A man determines to invest $25 in $5 wagers on the calling of the color in roulette. In his mind, or upon a piece of paper, he places the figure five in a row five times, thus:

The first time he loses, and he therefore places 5 at the end of his row and 5 in his column of losses, as may be seen in the table below. Adding the first and last figures together, he next bets $10 and, again losing, places the figure 10 at the end of his row and in the column of losses. He now, in pursuance of the rule, bets $15, and losing again, places $15 at the end of his row and in his column of losses. Twenty dollars is his next bet, but as this time he wins, he places the 20 in the column of winnings and strikes off the first and last figures in his row, which are 5 and 15.

Consequently, still pursuing the rule, his next bet is $15—the sum of 5 and 10—which he wins, and that figure goes into the winning column and the figures 5 and 10 are stricken from the row. Four figures now remain—all of them fives—and adding the first and last together the next bet is $10, which is lost, and the figure 10 goes at the end of the row and in the column of losses. This makes the next bet $15, which is lost, and again 15 goes at the end of the row and among the losses. Now $20 is the wager and wins, and that amount having been placed in the proper column the figures 5 and 15 are stricken from the row. This leaves 15 as the next bet, which wins again, which places that figure in the fortunate column and removes 10 and 5 from the row.

Now but two figures remain and each is a 5. The bet is $10 and it wins and the row is wiped out, and the first experiment with the system is at an end. The total of losses is $55 and the aggregate of winnings is $80, showing a difference in favor of the player of exactly $25, or five times the original wager. No matter how often this may be tried or how long fortune may prolong it, the result will be the same. This sum in gambling is demonstrated by the following figures. The letter "L" shows the losses and the crosses beneath the figures show how they are eliminated from the problem in its course:

5 5 5 5 5 5 10 15 10 15
x x x x x x x x x x
Losses—5 10 15 10 15—55.
Winnings—20 15 20 15 10—80.

It will readily be seen that the solution of this apparent mystery is contained in the fact that the player's winnings are bound to be in each individual bet larger than his losses, for upon each wager he adds each loss to its predecessor.

The natural inquiry would suggest itself why, if all this is true, any one cannot walk into a gilded bank of sin and clean out its coffers. As a matter of fact he could if the gambling house proprietors would permit him. But they won't, and therein lies the fallacy of any one trying to conquer the great American tiger. A very well known gentleman to whom Leonard Jerome explained the above system, but who himself never gambles, paid a friendly visit to John Daly's well known temple of fortune at Long Branch. He knew the proprietor well, and as a matter of curiosity explained to him the marvelous method of the old Monte Carlo croupier. Daly experimentally twirled the marble and the wheel and put the system to a rigid test. With a sardonic smile he admitted its absolute accuracy.

Said his friend: "A secret such as this is bound to leak out and no bank can withstand it. What will you do if a man comes in here and plays this method against your game?"

"Oh," said John Daly, with a shrug of his shoulders, "this sort of thing won't worry us. In the first place you must bear in mind that a man who thinks he has a sure thing, such as this appears to be, will play more than five dollars at a time. He is apt to put down not less than twenty-five dollars in the wager, and you can readily see that in the doublings up of this sum he would frequently have to bet more than one hundred dollars at one time. Even if he bet ten dollars at a time and had many successive losses, which is not unusual, he would be obliged in order to win by this system to make some one wager go beyond the century mark. Now we have a reserve rule, as have all other houses of this kind, for our own protection, and that permits us at any time to make one hundred dollars the limit of all betting. The enforcement of that regulation would completely upset any system of this kind. This scheme is new and wonderfully ingenious, but, as you see, we gamblers know how to protect ourselves against a 'sure thing.'"

"But," said the visitor, "this protection you refer to would not apply to the man who indulges only in five dollar bets. To him the system certainly affords a certainty of winning successive sums of twenty-five dollars each."

"True," said Daly; "but we don't run this house for people of that kind. I don't hesitate to say openly and publicly that we conduct this establishment to make money, and were it not for that fact we would not open our doors. We do not invest a fortune here and risk another in order that petty gamesters can come here and live upon us, and if we became aware of the fact that a man was playing this new system upon us with five dollar bets we would put him out of the house and never again permit him to enter it."

A CRISIS AVERTED.

Callithumpian and His Wife Exchange Domestic Grievances.

"It is time we understood each other, Elfleda," he said, as he drummed on the table with trembling fingers. "I think I have a right to know the cause of your dissatisfaction, your averted looks, your fits of abstraction and gloom."

"Have I ever made any complaint, Callithumpian?" said the young wife, looking in a wistful, melancholy way out of the window.

"You have not, Elfleda," returned Callithumpian. "If you would only say what it is I would see if I couldn't fix the thing up somehow," he continued, desperately, "even if it cost me $1!"

"It wouldn't cost more than—but no matter!" exclaimed Elfleda, hopelessly.

"Then you confess that it is something that might be healed by the disbursement of a little filthy lucre?"

And Callithumpian W. Magruder took out a lean and bilious looking pocketbook.

"I confess nothing."

The young husband replaced the pocketbook with great promptness and presence of mind.

"Elfleda," he entreated, "won't you tell me what it is that ails you? I know you are not happy."

"I cannot deny it"—and a tear stood in her eye—"I don't even enjoy my gum!"

"If you can't trust me, Elfleda, whom can you trust?"

"Give it up!"

"Av ye plaze mem?" remarked Nora, putting her head in through the doorway, "what'll yez have fur dinner the day?"

"Anything that's in the house, Norah," replied the dejected mistress; "it doesn't make any difference."

"Elfleda," vociferated Mr. Magruder, as the kitchen lady withdrew, "has this trouble of yours anything to do with the victuals?"

"Callithumpian," replied the young wife, in a voice of misery, "it has! I don't know why I should keep it a secret any longer. Think of me as you will, but I cannot help it. My heart is breaking, Callithumpian," she sobbed, "for—for a—m-ess of—of—of c-e abbages!"

"Is that all?" he whispered in her ear. "My own, I have a confession to make myself. I have not always been the gay, light hearted creature I have seemed. When outwardly calm and cheerful I have many and many a time been wretched and miserable on account of an unsatisfied longing for onions! I did not dare to speak of it. I did not know how you stood on the onion question. I sternly repressed the longing. I suffered in silence. But we will sorrow no more, my darling. The shadow of domestic discord is lifted from our home. Hi, there, Norah! Norah!"

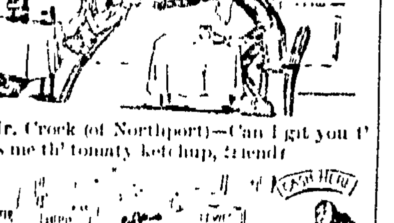

"Yessir!"

"Cabbages and onions for dinner, Norah, and plenty of them! Do you hear?"

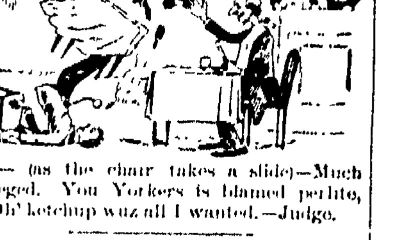

"Yes, sir."

And while the afternoon waned and the shadows grew longer and longer and the winds of early autumn blew softly through maples, whose leaves were ripening for their fall, the happy Callithumpian W. and Elfleda Magruder sat hand in hand in the cozy parlor and sniffed in sublime contentment of soul the cheerful New England odors that stole upward from the kitchen and permeated all the hallowed precincts of their home.—Chicago Tribune.

INVIGORATING and appetizing if taken cold before eating in the morning. It tones up the system, settles a disordered stomach. A gentle, but sure cathartic. If a matitudinal cocktail must be indulged in, it will counteract its bad effects as to stomach and brain. An absolute and sure preventitive of sea sickness. Its components are closely allied to the gastric juices of the stomach.

An Antidote to Intoxicants.

IF taken regularly, fresh and cold, three times a day, before each meal, it will put the stomach in such a shape that the necessity for stimulants will not be felt, and excessive desire can be toned down to simple moderation. I shall keep Clam Juice constantly on hand to be served FREE, hot or cold, to my customers. Knowing positively from experience that it will do all that is claimed for it above, I will try in every way to promote its use, as it is not my wish to encourage excessive drinking, and if I can discourage it by giving away freely the only known antidote I will only be too glad to do so.

A COMPULSORY SALE!

—OF—

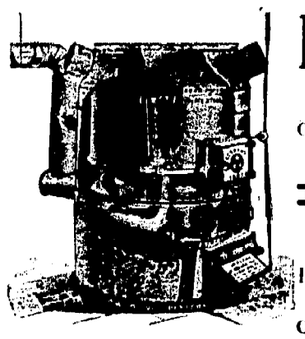

NEW, FINE and SEASONABLE GOODS.

My new building was to have been completed by September 21st, and I prepared for the Opening in a grand and sumptuous manner with the largest stock of CLOTHING, HATS, CAPS and FURNISHING GOODS that was ever brought into Marion. The room I now occupy is filled with one of the Finest Stocks of Goods and is crowded from top to bottom. I have always sold my goods cheaper than others, but under the present state of affairs I will have to sell cheaper than ever to get the money for the goods. It is impossible for me to say when I will get into my new quarters, but until then you will find me at Conrad's Block, North Main Street.

—White wine vinegar at Moore & Dedrick's. 2t

—John Thew was at Columbus a few hours today on business.

—D. McWilliams and daughter, Miss Pyrle, are visiting in Detroit.

—Don't fail to read the attractive list of paper bound books at Wiant's.

—David Landes, of Richwood, was moving about the city on business, Tuesday.

—John Walters, of Richwood, was the guest of relatives in this city Wednesday.

—J. F. Riser, of Upper Sandusky, was shaking hands with friends on our streets today.

—Mayor Gailey and George Copeland were circulating among Columbus friends today.

—Miss Minnie Weise and Mrs. Eliza Ross, of Richwood, are the guests of relatives in the city.

—Frank Johnston, Will Yake and John Mader were in attendance at the Bucyrus fair, today.

—Miss Minnie Lee, of Mt. Clement's, Ind., is the guest of Tom Mack and family on Greenwood street.

—Cliff Kling was laid up at home Wednesday with a game foot, the result of a heavy piece of iron falling upon it.

—If you want the very best quality of Rio, Mocha and Java coffee, unmixed with any low grades, buy at Moore & Dedrick's.

—Don't delay another day, but go at once to Moore & Dedrick's and buy a basket of those delicious Catawba Island peaches.

—Mrs. Judge Norris and son have returned home from Petosky, and Master Prosser shows a very gratifying improvement in health.

—Rev. and Mrs. L. C. Webster, of Toledo, and Mrs. Dr. Belt, of Kenton, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. DeWolfe on Wednesday.

—Mrs. M. E. Austen has returned to her home at Norwalk, Conn., after a short visit in this city, the guest of George May and family, on east South street.

—Ladies, remember Mrs. M. A. Miller treats neuralgia, rheumatism, liver, kidney and other female troubles with marked success by electro vapor baths.

—Thomas Grindell, of Richwood, has moved his family to this place where they will make their future home. They are now occupying a house in Baker's addition in east Marion.

—C. Neimeyer, J. R. Harshberger and Wm. Fies were at Prospect on a fishing trip. The report of the catch they made, although not exaggerated, is much larger than any of the season.

—Mrs. Sarah Kerr, an aged resident of Ashtabula county, who has been visiting as the guest of relatives in this city for some time, is reported quite sick at the home of Mrs. Johnston on north East street.

—A little son of J. W. Kennedy, aged about one year, died at his residence near Big Island Wednesday evening. The funeral will take place Friday at 11 a.m. from the house. The remains will be brought here for burial.

—Zenziel A., youngest daughter of A. and M. Ritzler, died of diphtheria at her parents' home in Green Camp this morning, aged 6 years, 7 months and 19 days. The funeral will take place at her late home on Saturday, Sept. 28th, at 2 p.m.

—Prof. C. Mundt, teacher of music, is in the city, looking about to see if his labors are in demand here. If the professor will organize a good orchestra—one that will delight instead of torturing Music Hall audiences, Marion may erect a monument to his memory.

—The remains of Charles Duncan, a young man formerly employed at the Norris & Christian stone quarries in this city but who has recently been working at Limestone, a few miles east of Toledo, passed through here on the way to his parents' home at Wheelersburg, accompanied by a number of friends. The deceased committed suicide Wednesday morning, by shooting himself in the head with a winchester rifle, for some unknown cause. He was a brother to Mrs. L. Sanderson, of this city, who accompanied the remains to his home for burial.

—Enamelline for sale by Moore & Dedrick.

—Miss Carrie Banning, of Cincinnati, is making a short visit in this city with W. S. Bowers and family.

—W. H. Gordon & Company made the sale of their ninth Victor clover huller for this season this morning.

—J. Hessohn, of Chillicothe, is spending a few days in the city, the guest of Chas. Terpany and family, on Bain avenue.

—Marriage licenses have been issued at the probate court to Jeremiah Nulk and Miss Winnifred Noonan, Henry Dutt and Miss Christena Lambert, George Lucas and Miss Myrtle Stearns.

—The Chicago and Atlantic will sell tickets to Chicago on Tuesday, October 1st, at the rate of $3.50 for the round trip, good for six days. The reduced rates are secured on behalf of the Old Settlers' Association of Ohio and Indiana.

—Dr. Copeland writes that his daughter is safely convalescent from her attack of malarial fever. The doctor sends us an interesting diagnosis of the case, which is too long, however, to find space in our columns. The veteran physician is always interesting in writing professionally.

—Exhibited in Strelitz's large show window is a large oil painting from Miss Gregg's studio, executed by Miss Gregg and C. C. Philips, and the fine work of the painting is attracting many favorable comments. It is an English scene, "When the Leaves Fall," and is a painting that would adorn any home. It is to be raffled off next month. Numbers can be procured now of Miss Gregg.

—The young lady reported to have struck a visitor at the cemetery last week, as reported in the Columbus Dispatch and copied by the STAR, desires to be set aright before the public by the statement that the report published is a misrepresentation in many particulars, that she did not strike the visitor but rather only took such measures as were necessary to save her privacy being objectionably intruded upon. With a desire to avoid undue publicity the proof of this denial is omitted with the hope that a generous public will see matters in the light of reason.
